‘LATE NITE CATECHISM’ COMES TO LA-Z-BOY CENTER

MONROE, Mich. – On Friday, Nov. 19 at 7:30 p.m., Monroe County Community College’s La-Z-Boy Center will host “Late Nite Catechism,” an interactive, comedic play that echoes the trials and tribulations of attending Catholic grade school.

Written by Maripat Donovan and Vicki Quade, Late Nite Catechism will remind the audience of what it was like prior to Vatican II, when Mass was spoken in Latin and before meat was allowed on Fridays. A strict Catholic nun, simply called “Sister,” commands the stage with a daring, edgy performance.

While it appears to be a one-woman show, the audience members will soon realize that they play an active part in the production – as the students. Sister’s disciplinary antics will have audience members laughing, clapping, and quick to respond to her drilling questions. Late-comers and gum-chewers will meet with a proper punishment.

“Late Nite Catechism is refreshingly different from most plays about religion, and those differences make this one-woman show a top-notch comedy,” the Chicago Reader reported.

The New York Times calls the performance, “hilarious, well-written and inspired.”

Tickets are $20 for reserved seating or $30 for VIP seating, which includes balcony seats, munchies and a cash bar. Tickets can be purchased in person at the MCCC Cashier’s Office in the
